NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The rumors circulated late yesterday regarding peace overtures by the Central Powers last their effect in today's stock market.

The market experienced another slight chill in the first of today's two hour session, but more than made up any lost ground, closing with a strong undertone, and numerous net advances.

Much of the heavy trading of the first hour, in which some stocks receded one to three points was attributed to an eager short interest and liquidation from interior points.

It was regarded as significant that rallies and actual gains were effected on very moderate dealings as compared with the heavy transactions that accompanied the decline. Total sales amounted to 685,000 shares.

General news of the day in no way detracted from the encouraging advances of the early week.

Trade reports were in line with similar intelligence of the past few months. Superabundant prosperity despite the shortage of crops and the lack of labor to hasten production.

Bank exchanges continue on a phenomenal scale, with exports of raw and manufactured products making greater strides.

DUN'S REVIEW.
NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Dun's Review says today:

Prosperous conditions in trade and industry are reflected in statistics of failures, which show a marked reduction from the high mortality of 1915. Strictly commercial insolvencies, as distinguished from banking suspensions and personal embarrassments, numbered 13,250 in the United States during the nine months just ended and involved $154,586,707 of defaulted indebtedness, against 17,288 reverses last year, when the liabilities reported to R. G. Dun and Company were $241,464,060. As the number of firms in business is steadily increasing, it is not surprising that there were more defaults than in all other years prior to 1915; yet the liabilities were the smallest for the period since 1912 and were also less than in 1908. Moreover, the record for the third quarter shows a numerical decrease of 1,632 and a contraction of about $18,000,000 in amount as compared with the first quarter this year, and, as the latest returns afford the best indication of present conditions, it is gratifying that there were fewer failures in September than in any month in three years, while the indebtedness was the lightest since August, 1911.

Settlement in the business mortality was practically general in the South Atlantic section, insolvencies during the nine months numbering 1,490, and involving $14,824,703, against 2,293 for $26,307,316 in 1915. Fewer defaults occurred in all of the nine states, except Delaware, where there was no change, and in South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, the decreases were especially marked. Aside from West Virginia and North Carolina, which reported increases of about $200,000
